Enrolling in my MBA Executive program at Symbiosis Institute of Management Studies (SIMS) is one of the most gratifying decisions of my life.

After working and being away from college for many years, I had to think about the MBA to enhance my managerial skill. But to fulfill my MBA dream it is a very difficult task to choose a good college. Then I applied to SIMS, and I am delighted to make that decision.

Now I think that the MBA Executive program at SIMS is perfect for any working professional.

Here, I have the opportunity to learn through the extremely interactive and engaging lectures from faculty/professors with both industrial experience and academic experience. In addition to the academics, it is the podium that SIMS is giving me for the development of my leadership skills that I will cherish for a lifetime.

Thanks to all Excellent faculty and great management teams for giving me this opportunity.

The MBA Executive program, in addition to expanding the skillset, teaches practical application of team management to understand a more strategic way to look ahead and influence stakeholders from various backgrounds.

The faculty is exceptionally supportive and dives deep into industries, including latest sectoral developments and case studies to match learning with hands-on experience.

MBA Executive students are taught not only to become the most skilful and competent- but also the most diligent and compassionate versions of themselves through responsible business practices.
